

Waveland voters miss hearing alderman candidates

BY JACQUI COCHRAN
The Hancock County Chamber of Commerce sponsored political forum Tuesday night drew approximately 60 people to hear candidates for Waveland Alderman speak.

All candidates were present with the exception of Ward 1

Democratic candidate William H. Ruhr.

Each candidate was given five minutes to make a presentation. Most spoke of their feelings for Waveland, their backgrounds and their desire to serve.

Specific ideas as to what each would like to accomplish in the next four years of Waveland's future were sparse.

Democrat Jay Fleuriet, Ward 2 candidate, offered two suggestions concerning the future need for a recycling program in garbage collections and a transit system from U. S. 90 to Stennis Space Center.

Most candidates spoke of beautification, police force image enhancement, city-sponsored recreation facilities and the enticement of more businesses to the area.

Ward 1 Democratic candidate Donald C. Harvill stressed the need for the area to encourage the small local businessman, instead of looking toward the larger industries as a cure-all solution.

Ward 3 Democratic candidate Clarence R. Harris, too, elaborated on the need to promote small and medium-sized businesses. Harris also brought up the subject of technical phases in education and junior college development in Waveland.

Democrat Curtis P. Colson, Ward 3 Alderman incumbent, suggested the construction of beach parking for safer access and a state advertising campaign to attract businesses to Waveland.

No one suggested higher taxes, but instead, efficient money management to stimulate increased revenues.

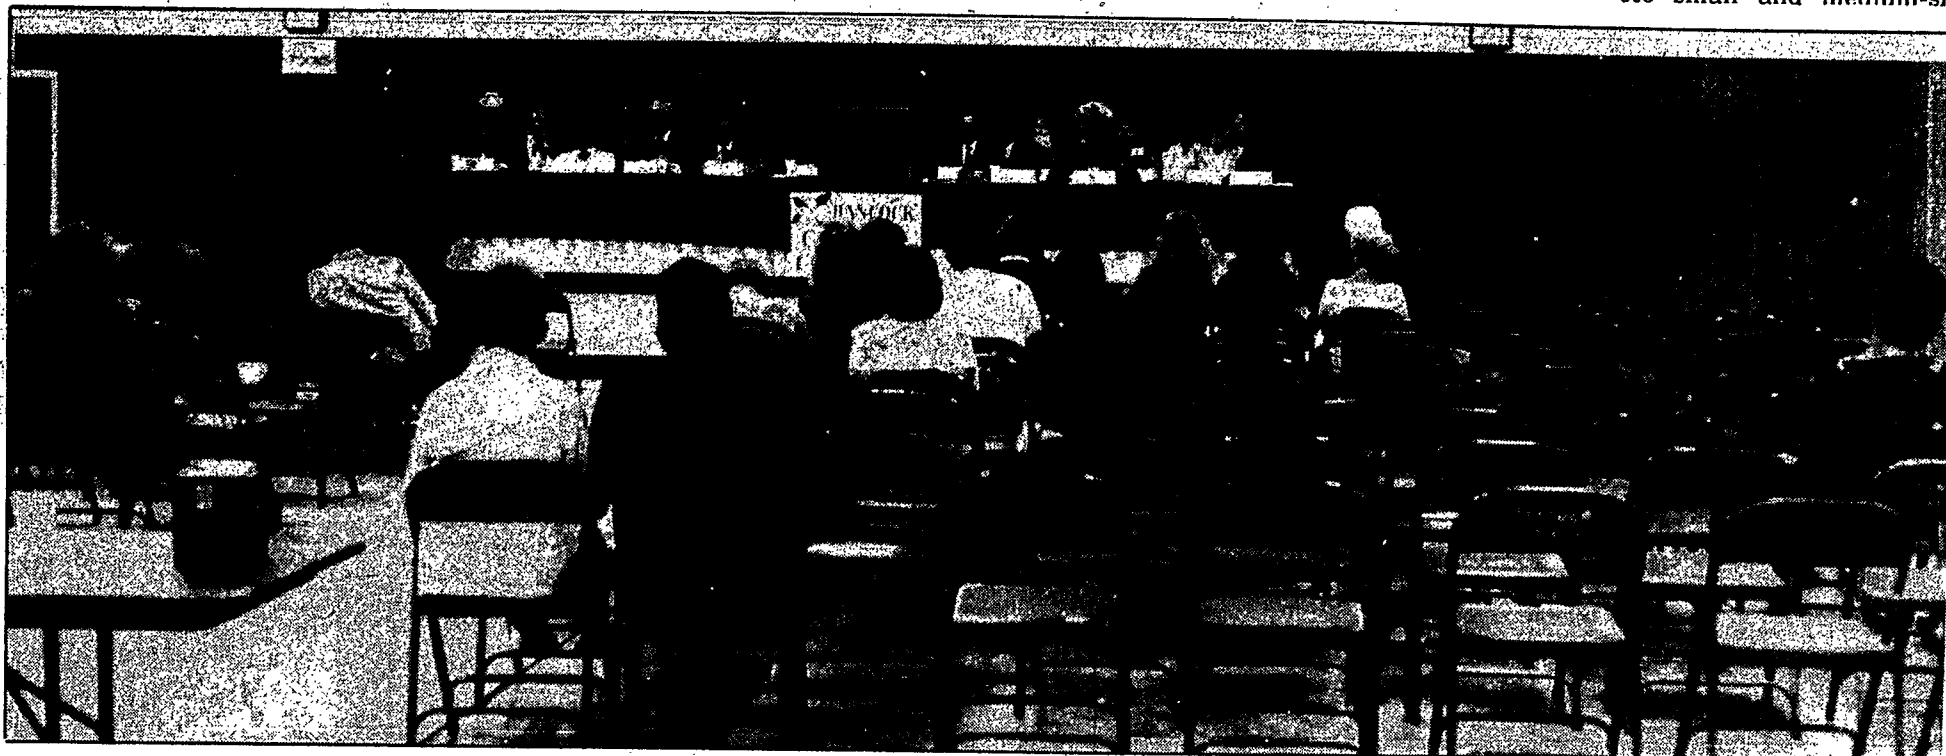

Everyone spoke of street and drainage improvements, completion of the city sewerage system, and accessibility to their respective constituents.

Ward 1 Independent candidate Barbara Rappold reminded the audience of the recently-acquired Farmers Home Administrative Loan, which is to be used to complete needed sewerage and water lines at the beginning of the year.

She also corrected a recently published article in the The Sun Herald, which stated aldermen make $14,000 a year salary. "We make $300 a month," said Rappold. "The newly-elected board will make $450 a month."

Ward 2 Republican candidate Sue Ashman stressed the

Richardson drops out of Waveland primary race

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

Waveland Ward 4 Alderman candidate Barry Richardson has withdrawn from the November 6 Democratic primary race, citing a possible conflict of interest as the reason.

Richardson explained after announcing his candidacy, he wrote the State Ethics Commission and asked for an opinion as to whether there would be a conflict of interest since he worked as maintenance superintendent for the Waveland Regional Wastewater Management District.

Richardson said October 10 he received an answer from the commission indicating there could be a conflict.

Richardson added he did not seek an opinion from the State Attorney General "because of the time frame" involved. "By the time I would get an answer, the election would already be over," he said.

Richardson said if he were elected and later discovered he would have to resign, it would cost the taxpayers money to call a special election to fill the seat.

"Concern in the matter prompted me to withdraw, to stop a special election at a later date," said Richardson.

He continued, "I believe I did the right thing at the time."

"The voters should consider one of the five (four Democrats, one Republican) other candidates. They are all qualified men."

Richardson said he intended to pursue the matter and did not rule out running for office in the future.

"I want to apologize to the people of Ward 4," said Richardson. "I want them to know I acted on my own accord."

Constitutional cleanup

Seven amendments on Nov. 6 election ballot explained

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

The November 6 general election for Hancock County includes seven constitutional amendments which, according to State Senator Vic Frankiewicz, are meant as 'house cleaning' measures.

The first amendment on the ballot allows a county the opportunity to lower its number of districts. At present, each county must be divided into five districts. The amendment will provide each county can have no more than five, allowing for less than five if so desired.

Another part of Amendment No. 1 deals with the requirement that a member of the board of supervisors be a resident freeholder (property holder) in his elected district. The change will require a board member to be a registered voter in the district from which he is elected.

The second amendment allows for the creation of a non-profit corporation to manage and operate a state prison industries program.

Frankiewicz explains the action as one of caution, for it is illegal under the present constitution for the state to be in a business.

The corporation will be state run and state appointed. Franckiewicz likened the corporation to that of the federally run postal system.

The amendment will also eliminate a provision whereby

Gambling proponents speak at Bay city council meeting

BY TRACI BONNEY

Charles Lambert of Bay Cove Harbour joined the dockside gambling fray Tuesday as he and Jake Jacobs appeared at the Bay St. Louis City Council meeting.

Jacobs, who represented Lambert in stating the businessman's case to the council during the public forum, started by handing out copies of a 10-page typed speech and an 11-page report faxed to Jacobs by Steven Richer of the Atlantic City Convention and Visitors Bureau.

Jacobs then began to read the speech to the council, quoting it verbatim for the most part, but with a few asides of his own.

He started by saying the revenues from the gambling industry in 1989 were $10.2 billion, with $9.5 billion coming from lotteries.

Mentioning the Abrams Report, often cited by gambling longer factual, out-of-date 'Big Apple' squeezing litanies of disaster in Atlantic City to determine thinking in the establishment of an industry now listed in New Jersey's 'top 100 firms.'

Jacobs spoke of Deadwood, South Dakota, which legalized casino gambling not long ago. He said officials of the town claim Deadwood's biggest problem today is whether or not to allow parking on Main Street.

When asked by council president Charles Scianna to close his speech so the council could continue the meeting, Jacobs briefly highlighted two or three opponents, Jacobs pointed out that it was issued almost a decade ago and claimed the casino industry has changed for the better since that time.

"It is ridiculous for these... 'Big Apple' squeezing litanies of disaster... to determine thinking in the establishment of an industry now listed in New Jersey's 'top 100 firms.'" — Jake Jacobs

After mentioning some of the anticipated benefits of dockside casino gambling and of instituting it at Bay Cove Harbour, Jacobs aimed one last barb at the Abrams Report. He said, "It is ridiculous for these if ever, no more points before concluding.

One statement, which Jacobs read verbatim from his speech, was apparently taken from a study by the Rutgers University Center for Urban Policy Research. It read in part: "Almost 50,000 casino jobs compromise about 1.5 percent of the state's total employment and a similar share of the state's

Returning to school

Adults, teens work toward GED degree

BY TRACI BONNEY

For Barbara Ferguson and Charles Rolison, it's the same scenery, different students.

By day, they teach English and math to Hancock High School students. By night, they teach math, essay writing and computer skills to a variety of local residents who are studying to earn their General Educational Development (GED) degrees.

Ferguson said she and Rolison test students before starting to teach them. The students take a test similar to the GED examinations given at the Pearl River College Vocational-Technical Center. When the test is graded, Ferguson and Rolison are able to pinpoint weak spots and determine what the student needs to learn or what "refresher" work needs to be done.

The student then begins attending classes, which are held Monday and Wednesday nights from 6 to 9.

"We've had several students get their GEDs and go on to college," Ferguson said.

People work to obtain their GEDs, which are equivalent to high school diplomas, for a variety of reasons, she said. Some do it for their own self-esteem, others to fulfill job requirements. Some attend the classes at the mandate of a court order.

"Some of the students we have are dropouts of our own school district," Ferguson commented. "It's getting to the point, though, where it's a lot easier for the kids to stay in school."

"The military used to accept the GED for those trying to enlist, but that's not the case now. They want the teens to finish high school."

In addition to the Monday and Wednesday night classes taught by Ferguson and Rolison, GED classes are held Mondays and Tuesdays from 9 a.m. to noon. These classes are taught by Lois Abrams.

U.S. citizens participate in German Passion Play

Ryan and Jessica Lommel

The play — the Oberammergau Passion Play — was the thing for the grandchildren of a Waveland resident this summer.

Ryan and Jessica Lommel, the nine- and five-year-old children of Rebecca Aguzin Lommel and Lt. Col. Robert Lommel, spent the summer performing in the world-renowned Passion Play, something very few foreigners are allowed to do.

Traveling to Germany to watch the children perform were several friends and relatives, including their grandmother Caroline Aguzin and uncle Rodney Aguzin of Waveland, Steve Aguzin, Joey Bonemps, Donald and Susan Aguzin Caldwell and their children, Mark and Adam.

Oberammergau, a village of 5,000 in the German Alps, is famous for its woodcarvings, painted houses and Passion Play. In 1633, the residents of the town promised to perform the play every 10 years until the end of time if they were delivered from the bubonic plague. The first performance took place in 1634.

The 1990 presentation is the 39th performance year since the first one.

The play, which lasts 5½ hours, was performed more than 100 times between May and September.

No professional actors perform in the production. In order to participate, an adult must have resided in Oberammergau at least 20 years. In the case of children, they must attend the German school in Oberammergau.

Ryan performed in the play with his second grade class with his teacher, Hans-Dieter Bierling, as past of the school curriculum. Jessica, who attended the kindergarten, was escorted on stage by Josef Buehner, a woodcarver of the village.

Ryan and Jessica lived in Oberammergau four years while their father was stationed at the NATO school there. The family recently returned to the United States, where they are now stationed in Hinesville, Ga.

Shifting gears

If you can afford an expensive car, now may be the time to buy one.

Parade magazine recently published its annual automotive issue, which highlights both the top-of-the-line models and the more affordable ones and features some of the newest options on the market.

Since this is not a commercial, I won't be mentioning specific models or companies. If you want to know the names, you should find an October 7 copy of the magazine.

So, without getting too specific, let me say this: It's hard to believe some of the things I saw in those pages.

For instance, would you like to have both the convenience of automatic transmission and the fuel efficiency of manual — or are you just indecisive? Then you might want to check into what is being offered by one of the "status" automobile companies. It's a car that allows you to switch from automatic to manual transmission.

Or are you one of those folks who must, for whatever reason, have a telephone at your fingertips at all times? Personally, I never saw the merit in having a phone in your car. Let's face it; it's hard enough to escape the clutches of the ever-insistent telephone as it is. Why invite it into the one place where you can go for refuge?

However, if you do want a phone in your vehicle, then you'll probably see eye-to-eye with this option: a cellular phone built into the driver's side sun visor. Except for dialing the number, you now have hands-free phone access.

If having a phone in your car is essential, but having it in the visor is not, you might want to consider another car, which features a telephone built into the driver's armrest.

For the safety-conscious, many new cars feature driver's side airbags, all-wheel drive, automatic seat belts, traction control, "heads-up" instrument panels (the speedometer and other readouts are projected onto an inconspicuous part of the windshield, like in fighter planes), and even child or infant seats. These options are becoming more common as car makers respond to the demand for safer vehicles.

For those to whom quickness is the foremost concern, one car (look for it in posters on teenagers' bedroom walls) sells for $200,000 (which is more than some houses) and claims a top speed of 200 miles an hour. I have one question: Why?

Now for those of you who really want to keep up with the trend of the future, there's a car being developed by a man who thinks roadway congestion is going to force us to take to the air one of these days.

You won't find this one in the pages of Parade. I read about it in the newspaper not too long ago.

This car, if it is ever perfected to the point of marketability, will go from rolling to flying at the flip of a switch, touch of a button, or something along those lines.

Imagine, if you will, trying to go to the mall on a Saturday during the summer. You're stuck on Hwy. 90, with tourist traffic clogging the road from the Mississippi/Louisiana state line all the way to Biloxi and beyond.

On top of all that, half the highway is still under construction (or is it destruction?), so the traffic is stop-and-go, with more stop than go.

What do you do? Do you: A) sit quietly and stew; B) demolish the vehicle immediately in front of you; or C) abandon your car and try to make it on foot?

Well, if you own one of these wonder-cars, you D) hit the switch, button or whatever, float above the maddening crowd, and fly to the mall.

It sounds wonderful, doesn't it? However, I can think of a few drawbacks.

For starters, would you need a driver's license, a pilot's license, or both, to operate one of these things?

How would the highway patrol, the sheriff's department or the police deal with the traffic problems that would be created? Let's face it, some teenager with a brand new driver's (or maybe driver's/pilot's) license and a flying car is not exactly going to worry about staying in the airspace above the lane on the ground.

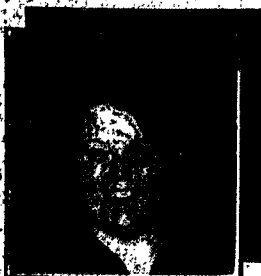

So, would we have air traffic controllers stationed in towers at every intersection? Or would the law officers perhaps take to the air themselves, either in their own little flying cars or in helicopters or small jets?

And one more thing that an acquaintance of mine pointed out: right now all we have to worry about falling on our cars is leaves, rain and bird droppings. What would we have to concern ourselves with once cars start flying? Air conditioner fluid? Leaking oil? A loose hubcap? A bumper that gets crunched in a mid-air collision? Or even whole cars?

Thanks, but no thanks. I'll stick to my battered but faithful gray four-door that has no airbag, no cellular phone, no capability for going more than maybe 90 miles an hour, and certainly no jet engines.

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

I am not surprised at the number of people I have been in conversation with during the past week who have had some comments about the Harrison County School Board's overruling of Harrison Central Principal Henry Rath's decision of disciplinary action against two students.

The people I have spoken too all back the school principal on his actions, and none appear to favor the school board.

It seems the school board members who overruled the principal's decision are taking all type of "flack" and I feel they rightfully have asked for it.

Rules are rules, and everyone should have to follow them, no matter who they are or who they know.

I hate to see a school principal who lives by the rules who has had to submit a resignation to make a point.

I have always been under the impression that school board members were in a position to uphold all the rules and regulations and to back those rules for those who have the responsibility of teaching our children.

I would like to hear from some of my readers as to how they feel about the situation in Harrison County.

I am sure it will be interesting.

The Rock-A-Chaws of St. Stanislaus have an opportunity to win a berth in District VIII 4-A in high school football Friday night when they play host to the Warriors of d'Iberville.

All Stanislaus has to do is defeat d'Iberville, and they will be in the playoffs for the first time in many years.

The Rocks have been playing some very close games this season with their strength being in defense.

The two losses for SSC were by a total of only eight points, and d'Iberville will be laying in the gap as they appear to have been improving each game of this season after a slow start.

Stanislaus will be playing at 100 percent to take the Warriors.

Hancock High School, highly ranked in the state remains undefeated and this week will play host to Wayne County.

I am not familiar with Wayne County, but since the Hawks are undefeated, I am sure the visitors will be trying to change that stat on their visit to Hancock County.

Hancock needs to be prepared for any surprises that Wayne County may want to throw at them.

Hancock is the District VIII 4-A champ and needs to play each game as the team comes along and not worry about district play.

Bay High's Tigers need to regroup after last week's encounter with the Tomcats of Stone County.

This week Bay High faces a strong St. Martin eleven, a team which should be steaming after two consecutive losses, one to Hancock and the other St. Stanislaus.

The young Tigers need more players and experience. Pass Christian will play arch rival Long Beach at the Pirate Stadium Friday.

Pass has its best team in quiet a few years, but records can be thrown out when the two teams play.

The Bearcats have been struggling this year and would like to tumble the Pirates who have the best team they have had in recent years.

This game, along with the St. Stanislaus and d'Iberville, should be the best along the Coast this Friday night.

I hope to see you at the game. Remember, your favorite team needs your support this week.

The regular season for high school football is fast coming to a close.

Best of luck to all of our local teams.

Look around Mississippi and learn

Did you know that one of every five Americans will eat bananas coming into the country through the Mississippi port at Gulfport?

Did you know that, while bananas don't grow in Mississippi, some one billion pounds of bananas are unloaded each year on our Gulf Coast, most coming from Mexico and Honduras.

Or, did you know that enough water flows through the Mississippi River each day to provide every man, woman and child in the world 60 gallons of water?

There is more, such as information about the state's cotton, catfish, and furniture industries, about imports and exports, and about other facts of interest to Mississippians.

It's all part of an ongoing series being sponsored by the Mississippi Press Association, entitled "Look Around Mississiippi and Learn."

The newspaper series was created by the talented educational director of the Sun Herald of Biloxi-Gulfport, Joann Ellis, and supported by other members of the statewide Press Association. More importantly, the bright new series is being shared with Mississippi readers throughout the state.

The series is a cooperative effort of the newspapers with the Mississippi Economic Council's "Look Around, Mississippi" program, an MEC-led activity designed to help Mississippi know more about—and appreciate more—the state in which they live.

You will want to look for the series in the Mississippi papers you read. After all, this is our chance—and the chance for our children—to "Look Around Mississippi and Learn."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Your vote could make a difference

Dear Editor,

I agree with mayoral candidate John Mason and Waveland mayor John Longo.

An open primary is the most sensible way to run an election. So many people do not vote. When asked why, they say their vote would not change anything, so why bother?

But many elections have been won or lost by one or two votes.

If you like a Democrat running for one office and a Republican running for another, then vote your way. If we have to vote a second time, then do it.

Hundreds of thousands in foreign countries would give an arm or a leg just to be able to vote; at all.

When I came to Hancock County in 1947, it cost two dollars to vote. It was called a "poll tax."

Now you can vote for free. So please vote. It's the American Way.

Respectfully,
Nina S. Garcia

FROM THE SENATE

By Senator
Trent Lott

There is what someone has termed a deafening den of delphian ambiguity in Washington these days. As Congress and the Administration grope for a solution to the budget deficit, the only audible debate is over what taxes the Administration or either political party will support.

Not represented in the debate is the camp that says the Congress must draw a line in the sand and refuse to raise taxes to bail the federal government out of its economic crunch.

In fiscal year 1991 total federal spending still will increase by 4.5 percent or $55 billion over fiscal 1990 levels, excluding the costs of the savings and loan bailout. So the problem is not a lack of revenues.

The budget summit deal turned down by the House of Representatives and the deal approved on Columbus Day by the Senate contained hundreds of billions of dollars of new spending as well as more than $135 billion in taxes. Every budget summit to date has resulted in more spending increases than new taxes raised. That's no deal.

Tax hikes may be the solution of choice for some in Washington—sterile Washington, D.C.—but not for the Gulf Coast fisherman whose daughter is planning for college or for the single mother in Luka who is trying to support her family on a teacher's salary.

Taxes are not a solution they can live with. When they exceed their budgets, they reduce their spending, and that's what they expect the federal government to do. It's that simple.

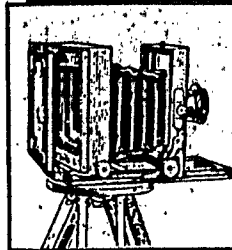

Rather than raise taxes as many anticipate we do by Oct. 20, the Congress can freeze the budget across the board. We can go further and freeze spending and then sequester some $40 billion across the board. That's the amount of budget reduction anticipated in the upcoming tax package.

There is waste and unnecessary spending in the federal budget. The summit agreement made no attempt to attack that, despite negotiations which lasted six months.

The summit deal did not cut funding for programs nor shut down programs that serve no national interest. Instead it raised taxes.

Now it is Congress' turn. We have an opportunity to craft a budget that—unlike the summit agreement—does not increase spending programs or taxes.

Some may think the easy choice for Congress is to raise taxes. The one that is right for the people is to scrutinize every federal spending program, justify its need, and prioritize what should be a limited source of funding. In the meantime, is it too much to ask for the Congress to refuse to increase spending instead of imposing more taxes on its constituents?

Weidman to run for Ward 4 alderman

Stan Weidman announces his candidacy for Alderman Ward 4 in Waveland.

Weidman, who is an unopposed Republican candidate, will appear on the ballot in the general election on Dec. 4, 1990.

A life-long resident of Waveland, he was graduated from Bay High School and the University of Southern Mississippi. He earned a BS degree in municipal recreation administration and a master's of science in outdoor resources and park management.

He is the son of Dorothy Bourgeois Weidman and Stanley Weidman.

He is married to the former Micky Albritton of Hattiesburg, and they are parents of four children, Shelley, 19; Wade, 17; Lauren, 14; and Brett, 11.

The Weidmans are members of St. Clare Catholic Church, where they were adult moderators for the parish CYO. He has served both as a coach and board member for several youth organizations, promoting wholesome recreational activities.

Weidman, who previously worked for two progressive communities, feels he has the necessary experience for managing public facilities, employees and a community budget. He has worked with both elected and appointed officials on the local, state and federal levels.

As a member of the Louisiana Recreation and Parks Association, he was twice elected chairman of the state research committee. He and his committee were instrumental in helping several communities upgrade their facilities, programs and activities.

"As a parent, nothing is more important than our children's welfare and wholesome development. If it were not for private groups, such as soccer and little league, what would our children participate in?"

"As your alderman, I am responsive to you," he said. "I will serve and assist you in receiving the services that your tax dollars pay for."

If elected, I plan to work for...

Two-state car chase ends in crash, arrests

BY TRACI BONNEY

Debbie Hamlin, 27, of New Orleans, and Edward Joseph Quintero, 28, of Baltimore, Md., were arrested on several charges around 11:40 p.m. Saturday after a high-speed chase on Hwy. 607, according to Hancock County Chief Sheriff's Investigator Delbert Seay.

According to Louisiana authorities, the chase started in Slidell when Steven Kennedy Sr., 29, of Slidell, reported the theft of his 1973 Datsun from a service station.

Slidell police officers and Louisiana state troopers pursued the vehicle until it crossed the state line, when Mississippi authorities took up the chase.

Authorities reported that the car exceeded 100 miles an hour as Hamlin and Quintero tried to escape their pursuers.

Seay said the sheriff's department received a call that the Mississippi Highway Patrol was chasing a stolen car headed for Interstate 10 on Hwy. 607. The sheriff's department joined in and stopped the vehicle at the intersection of Interstate 10 and Hwy. 607 when Hamlin, who was driving, is reported to have intentionally rammed a sheriff's department patrol car driven by Deputy Allen James.

The patrol car sustained about $3,000 of damage, while the stolen car was destroyed. Hamlin surrendered while Quintero tried to escape, but was caught. They were charged by the sheriff's department with aggravated assault on a police officer.

Seay said they are also wanted on charges filed by the Slidell Police Department, as well as on Mississippi Highway Patrol charges.

They are currently in the Hancock County jail. Seay is in charge of the investigation.

Arresting officers were Mississippi Highway Patrol officers David Murtagh and Wilbert Myers.

Walker was released on a $3,000 bond. Hoda is in charge of the investigation. Deputy George Burleson was the arresting officer.

Angie's, dining at its best

If you haven't "made the scene" at Angie's on Main Street in Bay St. Louis, you've been depriving yourself of fine food and good company in a most welcoming atmosphere! We had been planning to go there for lunch or dinner or Sunday Brunch ever since Angie's opened its doors five weeks ago in the handsome sun-bright yellow old-fashioned cottage at 210 Main Street, but somehow hadn't made our way there. But, you may be sure that we'll find our way back again and again, and so will you, I venture to say, once you've tasted the food!

A special plus for me was to learn that the owner and proprietor is none other than Eldridge Emboulas Jr., whom I'd known for years, when he was major domo at Brennan's Restaurant in New Orleans' French Quarter and later at The Court of Two Sisters in the Quarter.

Eldridge and his wife Alicia had retired to their Coast home, but he can no more keep out of the kitchen than I can keep away from scribbling.

So, they bought the property and named this stellar eating place Angie's for their winsome granddaughter; and Eldridge is in his element, a genial host and restaurateur par excellence.

He and Angie welcomed us warmly, and we visited and reminisced over white wine and bites of well-seasoned, crispy garlic bread cubes, before getting down to decisions on the meal. My friend Chris had already told me that Eldridge wanted us to "sample some of everything" and this we did.

Correction, we did far more than sample the array, with our host and Angie and our most attentive waiter plying us with one delicious dish after another. And, if you want to know which dish I liked best, it's almost impossible to say, as our meal was so excellent from start to finish!

First, the soup, minestrone for me, that wonderfully robust Italian version of vegetable soup, but with such a difference! And, for my companion, Eldridge's own special onion soup, thick and well-seasoned, a combination of onions (instead of the usual oysters) with artichoke hearts in the popular soup.

As for the Caesar Salad, it was a masterpiece of Eldridge's showmanship as well as of delicious taste! And, looking on as Eldridge prepared it at our table, we found our mouths watering in anticipation, and it was every bit as good as it looked!

We chose one of the "Chef's Extra Specials" and were ever so happy that we did. The Panne Veal was almost unbelievably tender and succulent, more than generous portions of baby-white, milk-fed veal, accompanied by a superb Fettuccini Alfredo, the rich sauce further enhanced with accents of artichoke hearts and mushrooms.

The contrast of the tender, subtly seasoned veal in its crunchy, butter-whispery breading, with the richer than rich garlicky sauce made for a brilliant dining experience. We couldn't begin to finish it all, of course, so generous were the servings; so Eldridge promised us "Go-Bags" to take some of our mealtime treasure home with us. And, he cited the "three things every Italian restaurant must have": spaghetti, and meatballs every day, lasagne, and "Go-Bags." Right...

Another "Extra Special" is roasted Chicken Italiano with Angel Hair Pasta, and still another special Italian dish is Italian cauliflower with Spaghetti.

Angie's specializes in fine Italian cuisine, along with steaks and seafood. Catfish Almondine is an outstanding menu item as is Soft Shell Crab with Angie Potatoes.

The special lunch menu includes choices of spaghetti and lasagne, along with the catfish and 5-ounce ribeye steak with baked potato, each order served along with choice of minestrone or Soup du Jour or mixed green salad. An a la carte menu is also available at lunch, as well as at dinner and Sunday brunch.

Special entrees at dinner feature the veal, as well as ribeyes and soft shell crab and fresh grilled tuna, a real taste treat. And if you're heading that way for Sunday Brunch (served from 11:30 a.m. till 7:30 p.m.) you'll surely see us and a few other friends at a table, enjoying Eggs Bay St. Louis and sipping the complimentary champagne! Can't wait to taste the seafood sauce featured instead of traditional Hollandaise on the poached eggs—quite a treat, we're told!

There's also an artichoke omelette, ham steak with eggs and Tournedos Alicia on the brunch menu; and brunch dessert choices are bread pudding with lemon sauce and cobbler du jour.

Brunch Entrees are served with choice of juice or fruit, compote, or soup. There's also mixed green salad with choice of dressings.

And, for the sake of your palate, please, don't pass up the sinfully good bread pudding with lemon sauce. This, with our coffee, was the delightful finale of our dinner the other evening, and although my dinner partner and I had partaken well and liberally of the preceding courses, we simply could not resist this gem of the table.

Just about anyone reared in New Orleans (and on the Coast) claims to be an expert on bread pudding and has firmly fixed ideas as to the best way to make it; and I also am somewhat set in my ways at times! Let me just say that the bread pudding at Angie's is worthy of highest accolades! Greedy me, I'd like to have a bit right now!

COOKING UP A STORM
 By Katy McGuire Caire

A breakfast, brunch or just about anytime-of-the-day treat dear to just about all Southern cooks is "Fried Ham With Red-Eye Gravy"—a flavorful dish, usually served along with grits and hot buttered biscuits.

Of course, a ham slice "fried" in this manner is not really fried at all, but is usually pan-broiled or pan-fried without any oil, making just enough drippings for the "red" gravy with which to drench the butter-puddled grits.

To cook this simple but oh-so-good dish, heat a heavy skillet over medium heat, after rubbing the bottom with a little bit of the fat from the ham slice or slices (from 1/2-inch to inch-thick, as you prefer) you plan to cook, depending, of course, upon the number for whom you're cooking.

Place the ham slices in the skillet, turning as they cook so that the edges won't curl up. I usually trim fat well, and slash the edges of the ham beforehand. Sprinkle each side of ham with sugar during cooking. Then remove from the skillet and keep warm on platter.

Next, add to the crusty drippings in the skillet a cup or more of strong brewed coffee, to loosen those luscious "burnings" or particles clinging to the bottom of the pan. You may use water instead of the coffee if you prefer, but the coffee gravy gives a richer taste.

At any rate, stir and stir again, and heat up the coffee-gravy and let it boil until the gravy turns red, adding a generous dash of hot pepper sauce. Rush it to the table before the ham gets too hard, as fried ham will.

The simple secret of good red-eye gravy is, to cook the ham first over medium heat, so that most of the juices will evaporate, leaving mostly the crusty particles in the pan, otherwise, if the heat is too low, you'll end up with braised ham.

And, after you scrape and stir around all the "fry" in the pan, keep stirring like mad after adding the liquid. That's all there is to it, but it's so good!

By the way, if your ham is too salty, soak the slices in hot water or milk for a few minutes beforehand. And enjoy! Country ham is really best for this dish, but you may substitute other ham slices.

CLUBS, AUXILIARIES

American Legion Auxiliary Unit 139

The regular monthly meeting of the Clement R. Bontemps American Legion Auxiliary Unit 139 was Monday, Oct. 8 at the Legion home.

Janet Aime, president, opened the meeting, the color-bearers, Roslyn Weathers and Evelyn Burns, advanced the colors; the president led the members in the Pledge of Allegiance, followed by the Preamble; the chaplain, Ursula Favre, read the prayers.

Secretary Janette Ladner called the roll of officers, read the minutes of the previous meeting and correspondence from various sources.

Treasurer Bobbye Tomlinson gave her report on the financial status of the unit.

Committees were called upon to give their reports, including:

- Membership—Judy Gavney, chairman, told of progress in collecting the dues of the members and the numbers the auxiliary has reached so far.
- Emergency—Oris Planchard spoke on the money the auxiliary has collected this month due to the efforts of the members in the recycling of cans and thanked the members for their help.
- Community service—Roslyn Weathers and Oris Planchard told of visits to Hotel Reed Nursing Center; the collection of clothing for the veterans and for the Women's Shelter, and the responses they received for their efforts.
- Chaplain—Ursula Favre spoke of sending get-well cards to ailing members.
- Children and youth—Pat Gillan spoke of preparations for the Halloween party at the Hancock Medical Center. She asked for members to help with refreshments for the event. The hours are from 7 to 9 p.m. Oct. 31.

VACS—Lucille Boudreaux spoke on the "Recognition Party" planned for the women veterans in the 9th District area to be held in Biloxi on Nov. 9.

—Lou Wilkerson spoke on the "Southern Comfort" project Judy Gavney, Bobbye Tomlinson and she did and of the many articles gathered for military stationed in the Gulf at this time.

There will be a po-boy sale of roast beef on Wednesday, Oct. 17. Orders will be taken and pick-up orders delivered. Call 467-9000 and place on advance order. Sandwich price is now $3.50 due to the raise in the price of food.

Lucille Boudreaux requested the membership to make their returns for the annual Christmas giftshop for the veterans in Gulfport so that she can make up the difference where needed. Each member should bring at least two gifts.

Veterans Day this year will be a joint affair with Post 77 and will be at the Coleman Avenue post home on Nov. 11.

The color bearers retired the colors, the chaplain said the closing prayers and the president closed the meeting with a few words. Refreshments were served.

Learning Ladies

The October meeting of the Learning Ladies Homemakers Club was Tuesday, Oct. 16 at the Extension Center. There were seven members in attendance. Charlotte Edwards president, presided.

Wanda Berthelot reported the Lions Club will have an eye van for the public on Saturday, Nov. 3 at the Jitney Jungle. She is also working on a diabetes screening. Details will be announced in the paper. She is also collecting old eye glasses for the Lions Club.

The Salvation Army Dolls project was also discussed. There were several on display. Dolls should be finished and returned to the center by Nov. 5.

The lap robe project was also discussed. Several were displayed. The nominating committee submitted a slate of officers that will be submitted and voted on at the November meeting. Norma Haas will be hostess at the November meeting, and Inez Olivier volunteered to demonstrate a craft project.

The Stennis Area program was briefly discussed and Berthelot stressed the importance of always purchasing refrigerated eggs, never those that are not kept cold. For items calling for raw eggs, she suggested using pasteurized products.

The Christmas party will be Tuesday, Dec. 18.

Following a brown bag lunch, materials for lap robes were distributed.

The workshop, which is sponsored by the PRC Small Business Development Center of Forrest County, will introduce prospective entrepreneurs to the potential hazards and joys of owning a small business.

The topics will include: how to decide if your business idea is feasible; defining your customer; legal considerations of entrepreneurship; formulating a business plan, federal, state, and local requirements; small business finance; how to approach a lending institution.

While not a comprehensive review of all elements of starting a small business, the "Thinking About Going Into Business" workshop gives the prospective business owners a better sense of direction in their efforts.

It also helps the new business owners make better decisions, and it will enable them to obtain further assistance should they decide to "take the plunge" by starting their own business.

The two and one-half hour session will be in the Technology Building on the Poplarville campus of Pearl River College from 6:30 to 9 p.m.

Registration fee is $15 which covers the cost of materials. Interested persons should call Lucy Betcher, SBDC director, at 544-0030.

Betcher said those interested should pre-register by telephone in order to reserve place and materials for the program.

Koehr earns commendation for oceanographic service

Rear Admiral James E. Koehr has received a certificate of special commendation and award from the Marine Technology Society (MTS) for his distinguished service as a naval oceanographer and as Commander, Naval Oceanography Command.

The award was presented by MTS president Richard M. Shamp during an awards luncheon held in conjunction with the society's annual conference and exposition Sept. 26-28 in Washington, D.C.

Koehr heads the Naval Oceanography Command, headquartered at the Stennis Space Center. The command is a worldwide organization comprised of some 3000 officer, enlisted and civilian personnel at 65 shore activities and aboard 12 oceanographic survey ships and three aircraft.

Its mission is to provide oceanographic, meteorological and mapping, charting and geodesy products to naval units operating in, on and above the world's oceans.

The certificate cited Koehr's "significant long term contributions to the Naval Oceanography Program by developing innovative projects to increase and improve ocean implemented efforts to monitor weapons, sensors and platform systems development to insure that the influence and impact of the ocean environment was addressed and marine technology issues were considered."

MTS, along with the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, The Oceanography Society and the Society for Underwater Technology, sponsored the MTS '90 to address issues and technology affecting the world's oceans.

Retired Senior Volunteer Program keeps elderly citizens on the go

The Retired Senior Volunteer Program views older people as an asset, not a liability. The senior citizens of Hancock County have proven themselves through the many dedicated activities they have accomplished in the name of RSVP.

Senior citizens who have accumulated the knowledge and talents of a lifetime have used these abilities to benefit this community since 1973.

The RSVP program, with an enrollment of 415 volunteers, over the age of 60, serves more than 96,000 community service hours each year.

Meals-On-Wheels deliver meals to shut-ins five days each week.

Volunteers also work at the Waveland Hospitality Center providing information and guided tours to visitors to the area. Other dedicated people serve at the local blood drives for the American Red Cross, and help at the Hancock County Food Pantry.

RSVP singing seniors perform regularly at the area nursing homes and at special events in the community.

'Project Grandpa' introduces young children at local day care centers to positive male role models.

Tutoring children with learning disabilities, working in the offices and the library are some ways these members serve the Bay-Waveland School District.

Through the Hancock County Emergency Relief program, senior volunteers help families stranded on the road and local residents during times of emergencies.

payroll."

After inviting the council members to visit Bay Cove Harbour and discuss the matter at any time, Lambert handed out his business cards and the two men left the meeting.

Others speaking during the public forum were Bart Carr and Kevin Fitzpatrick.

Carr urged the council to consider installing sidewalks on Felicity Street so that children walking to North Bay Elementary School will not be exposed to the hazards of walking in the street or too near the drainage ditch beside the road.

Fitzpatrick discussed with the council plans for a wooden deck, or "shoo-fly" to be built around the large oak tree next to City Hall.

The shoo-fly will serve nostalgic, psychological and practical purposes, he said. Built with pressure-treated wood and cypress ball finials on the railing, the deck's appearance will be in keeping with the architecture of City Hall.

At the same time, its enhancement of the city park area will serve as a symbol to residents and visitors of the caring and hospitality inherent to the city, Fitzpatrick said.

Its practical use will come in the form of a place to sit and relax or eat a picnic lunch, a focal point for political rallies or perhaps a stage for small bands for concerts.

The council viewed Fitzpatrick's blueprints and authorized him and Mayor Edward Favre to draw up a list of specifications so the council can start to advertise for the necessary materials.

In other business, the council:

- voted to reject and re-advertise for asphalt bids;
- approved uniform allowance payments for police officers;
- approved two pages of miscellaneous claims;
- and granted a permit to the Coastal Tenants Association from Poycune for a short parade Friday morning.

When It Comes To Auto Financing,

* Hancock Is Your #1 Bank.

During the first eight months of 1990, more people in south Mississippi financed their cars and trucks through Hancock Bank than any other local or out-of-state Bank. More than the Credit Unions. More than the Savings & Loans. Even more than two of the big three auto manufacturer's credit corporations.

Surprised? You shouldn't be. Hancock Bank has consistently financed more automobiles than any other bank in south Mississippi since the 1930's.

And it doesn't matter whether you work directly with the dealer, or with your loan officer at your local branch, you will get the same competitive rate.

Are we? Or aren't we?

James Edward's comedy "Best of Friends" finds divorce to be complex, when Josie relates the tale of the juggler/justice of the peace. From left, Becky Rotundo as Kate, Jerry Lenfant as Felix, Deborah Wolf as Daryl, Ron Kozak as Archer, Phyllis Lenfant as Lib, Mike Wesley as Merrill and Dottie Overal as Josie. ## When "Best of Friends" fall out

Bay opens season with tremendous effort

BY JACQUI COCHRAN
The Bay St. Louis Little Theater opens its 1990-91 season tomorrow evening with the James Edward comedy "Best of Friends."

The play relates the story of a 30-year marriage in which the excitement of youth has been colored by the realities of time.

Through the years, Archer Connaught, played by Ron Kozak, has gained wealth and fame as a writer, while Josie Connaught, played by Dottie Overal, remains the ever steady wife who understandingly waits upon "Peter-Pan's" return.

Archer has been absent from his home for the past 10 years when the play opens. We hear the news of his assumed death through the excitement of his son, the irritation of his daughter and the disappointment of his wife.

Before the memorial tree can be planted, in walks Archer.

Archer wants a divorce in order to marry Daryl Stoddard, played by Deborah Wolf, the young graduate student and socialite who is enamored by the zealous Archer.

Josie agrees. Or does she? Edward's play is loaded with a dialogue of subtle innuendos which are somewhat lost in stiff deliveries.

Kozak's portrayal of Archer is the exception.

As Archer, Kozak is explosive. He rants and raves around the stage expressing all the contradictions of a man clinging to his youth.

Overal joined the company just three weeks ago, putting her at a time disadvantage. Her Josie never quite gains the sharpness and sarcasm needed to reveal the hurt, the anger, behind the smile.

Wolf, as Daryl the love interest of Archer, is the most unbelievable of all. Wolf successfully portrays a dumb blonde, remaining shallow and monotone. We never really know why Archer would desire Daryl, except to assume she is younger. If lust is the reason, where is it?

Becky Rotundo, as Kate Connaught, does a good job in the first half of the play. She is the embittered spinster, rejecting all men. In the second half of the play a change occurs in Kate, and sadly, we never get to see the ice melt.

Felix Hackaday, the young attorney who becomes involved in the complications of Archer and Josie's divorce, is played by Jerry Lenfant. Felix is pursuing the family members for permission to make a movie of Archer's life. He is in constant confrontation with Kate. Lenfant gives Felix a nonchalant, easy going manner, but again, when he begins to lose his head, the emotional changeover is lost.

Mike Wesley as Merrill Connaught, the unconventional son, riding on his father's shirt-tails somehow never really comes alive either. Affected by his father's return, the change is most noticed by the absent mustache.

Lib Connaught is played by Phyllis Lenfant, real life wife to Jerry and pretend daughter-in-law to Archer. Lib is a background character, and Lenfant succeeds in keeping Lib as Merrill's bouncing board. Lib, fortunately, is there to tell us of Merrill's metamorphosis.

Sally Rodrigue plays Hazel Dunn, Archer's agent and woman-Friday. She is truly a breath of fresh air from the moment she walks on the stage, as is her real life husband Hank Rodrigue who portrays the drunken juggler/justice of the peace.

The Bay St. Louis Little Theater has worked hard to bring this production to the community. This company should be congratulated for the time they have volunteered and the effort they have exhausted.

The potential for a successful season lies not only in the support of the run of the play, but in the participation of new faces to take on the challenge of stage acting.

More people are needed to try out, in order that roles can be better suited to the participants.

If "Best of Friends" falls short, it is not for lack of courage on the part of the cast, it is for lack of courage on the part of the community.

"Best of Friends" will run for two weekends, on Friday and Saturday nights, Oct. 19, 20, 26 and 27. The curtain will rise at 8:15 p.m.

Center Stage's 'Aladdin' showcases Coast kids

"Aladdin and the Magic Lamp" will be presented at Center Stage, Petit Bois Specialty Center, Biloxi, for eight performances Oct. 16, 17, 18 and 19. Show times are 4:30 and 7:30 p.m. daily.

The theater's annual fall children's production has been quadruple cast with 120 boys and girls Coastwide between the ages of eight and 18. Chuck White is director.

Admission is $3.75. Further information is available from the Center Stage box office at 388-6258.

"Aladdin" is funded in part by a grant from the Mississippi Arts Commission and the National Endowment for the Arts.

Bonsai seminar to be offered at art museum

The Mississippi Museum of Art/Gulf Coast will showcase various aspects of the Japanese culture during the current exhibition of woodblock prints from the 18th, 19th and 20th centuries.

One cultural aspect is the art of bonsai, growing dwarf potted trees and shrubs.

On Sunday, Oct. 21 at 3 p.m. a video by the Brooklyn Botanic Gardens will be shown on the basic care and techniques used to dwarf trees like elms, cypress, etc.

Local bonsai experts, the Blackburn family of Ocean Springs, will be on hand to discuss the video and general topic further. The presentation is free and refreshments will be served.

prisoners were separated according to race. Franckiewicz said this was an antiquated system which had not been practiced for years and violated federal constitutional laws.

Amendment No. 3 is to speed up the legislative process. The law presently requires every bill be read three times, on separate days, in full. This law dates from 1890.

The amendment does retain a provision whereby, upon demand, the bill must be read in full.

Included in the third amendment is the elimination of the requirement that the Speaker of the House and President of the Senate sign every bill in open session by giving notice, suspending business, having the bill read by its title, reading it in full upon demand and entering all proceedings.

The amendment will require each bill be signed during legislative session.

The fourth amendment repeals the law which provides for pensions to Confederate soldiers, sailors and widows.

The last known surviving widow of a Confederate veteran was Mrs. Kate Nelms, who died on March 20, 1987.

Amendment No. 5 repeals the boundaries of the state established in 1890, which are inaccurate and the source of unnecessary litigation, according to Franckiewicz.

State boundaries are established by Congress, making state descriptions unnecessary.

Amendment No. 6 removes a provision stating the legislature will elect United States Senators, and adds a correction to a previous provision in which the legislature was prohibited from appointing presidential electors, enabling the legislature to appoint electors.

Amendment No. 7 repeals a law requiring the state treasurer to publish a statement under oath showing the balance of the treasury along with a certificate from the governor verifying the funds to actually be in the state vaults.

No money is kept in state vaults, it is all on paper.

Out of 10 elected positions, only one, the 5th District House of Representatives race between incumbent Democrat Gene Taylor and Republican challenger Sheila Smith will go to a vote. All others are uncontested.

Hancock County closed voter registration on Friday, October

5 with 318 less voters on the rolls than last year, bringing the county total for 1990 to 21,500.

On two Saturdays, October 27 and November 3, the Circuit Clerk's office in the Hancock County Courthouse will be open for absentee voting from 8 a.m. to noon. Election day is Tuesday, November 6.

Shaw reunion planned at Crane Creek Baptist

Special to the Echo

The descendants of John Gadsden Shaw will celebrate their 13th reunion on Oct. 20 at Crane Creek Baptist Church in the Crane Creek Community of Hancock County off Hwy. 53.

John Gadsden Shaw settled in the northwest area of Harrison County circa 1846 where he married Annie Ladner, daughter of Carlos Ladner and Annie Rester Ladner in late 1846.

Shaw came to this area from the farming country of Mayesville S.C. He was a school teacher for Harrison County and a farmer.

There were 15 children born to the Shaws. They settled in the surrounding areas of Pearl River, Harrison, Hancock and Stone counties.

Shaw

The majority of the family still lives in these areas.

The children born to the Shaws were David McBride Shaw, Carlos Rester Shaw, John Bethune Shaw, Samuel Shaw, Rebecca Shaw Smith, William Ervin Shaw;

Henrietta Louise Shaw Smith, Harriet Annie Shaw Ladner, Junius Mayers Shaw, Edgar Shaw, Emily Shaw;

Lillis Shaw Ladner, Calvin Shaw, a former Hancock County supervisor for 28 years; Alice Shaw and Joseph Chandler Shaw.

Family members have served their communities and their country in a number of areas ranging from tilling the soil as their farming forefathers to participating in the space programs reaching to new dimensions.

They have been teachers for the young, workers in health care giving aid, security officers protecting neighborhoods, workers in the factories clothing the masses, and as carpenters building homes, work places and shipping ports.

Our country has seen members of this family working for the railroads that crisscross the land carrying products prepared by others in the forests, the dairies, the oil industry that have helped all have a better life.

The shipping industry has served the world with ships built by pipe fitters, welders, electricians, metal tradesmen, and other craftsmen that have been represented by members of the Shaw family.

For all these, there have been preachers to meet the spiritual needs of the family, politicians who have helped voice concerns in our government, and those who have served our country bravely in war, some losing their lives. The merchants in the family have served daily.

Family members are asked to bring a basket lunch and a chair. Drinks, cups, plates and utensils will be furnished. For further information call Carl Shaw at 255-7219.

Navy to celebrate birthday

U. S. Navy activities from the John C. Stennis Space Center will celebrate the Navy's 215th birthday at a formal ball to be held Oct. 20 at the Pass Christian Yacht Club.

Some 100 guests from the Naval Oceanography Command Headquarters, the Naval Oceanographic Office and Naval Oceanographic and Atmospheric Research Laboratory are expected to attend.

Bryce Reveley

State Museum System as curator of costumes and textiles.

She was curator of Dior: Merchant of Happiness exhibition, the Mardi Gras costume exhibition at the U. S. Mint and the antique doll, toy and Christmas exhibition at the Presbytere.

In addition to an interview in The New York Times recently, she was featured in a recent issue of New Orleans magazine's bridal issue.

She writes a regular column on historic textile collections for Creative Needle. Her most recently published article was an analysis of mourning portraits in the Fall 1988 issue of Southern Quarterly, which is dedicated to Southern women and their textiles.

Reveley is a native of Arkansas and is a Hendrix graduate with a master's degree from University of New Orleans. She has done post-doctoral work at Tulane University and is currently enrolled in a master's degree program in museum studies at the University of London, specializing in historic textiles.

Johnny Longo was elected and took office in 1974 as mayor.

How can anyone run and vote against our present mayor, for all he has done for us in Waveland?

These are some of the things he did.

- Finest police department-new police building
- There is no charge for garbage and trash pickup
- The cheapest millage tax for a city in Mississippi this size
- He has the top grade foremen and superintendents to help run our city. (Look and see how nice and clean it is.)
- Look at our community pier. He had it built and named after our mayor who stayed in office the longest, "Garfield Ladner," for 32 years.
- He built the animal shelter in Waveland, the only one in Hancock County built in 1984.
- He helped bring the Buccaneer Park to Waveland.
- Look what he did to improve the sewage and water system, new water tower, new fire station, I could go on and on.
- Also I would like to thank ALL of the Aldermen who helped Johnny do these things.

As a 73-year-old Waveland native, I would like to thank Johnny Longo.

Hawks host War Eagles

Special to the Echo
BY BELINDA LILES

Tomorrow night the Hancock High School Hawks will play host to the Wayne County War Eagles. Last year Hancock's quest for an undefeated season was spoiled by this team. The Hawks stand 7-0 going into this contest, the same record as last year when they first encountered the War Eagles.

Wayne County brings with them a 5-2 record. This is no indication as to how strong this team really is. The War Eagles are playing their second season as a 5-A team after the consolidation of three separate high schools in Wayne County.

"This is a smaller team than last year, but they are a really physical and aggressive unit. Offensively they run a wish-bone set," said Coach Irvin Favre.

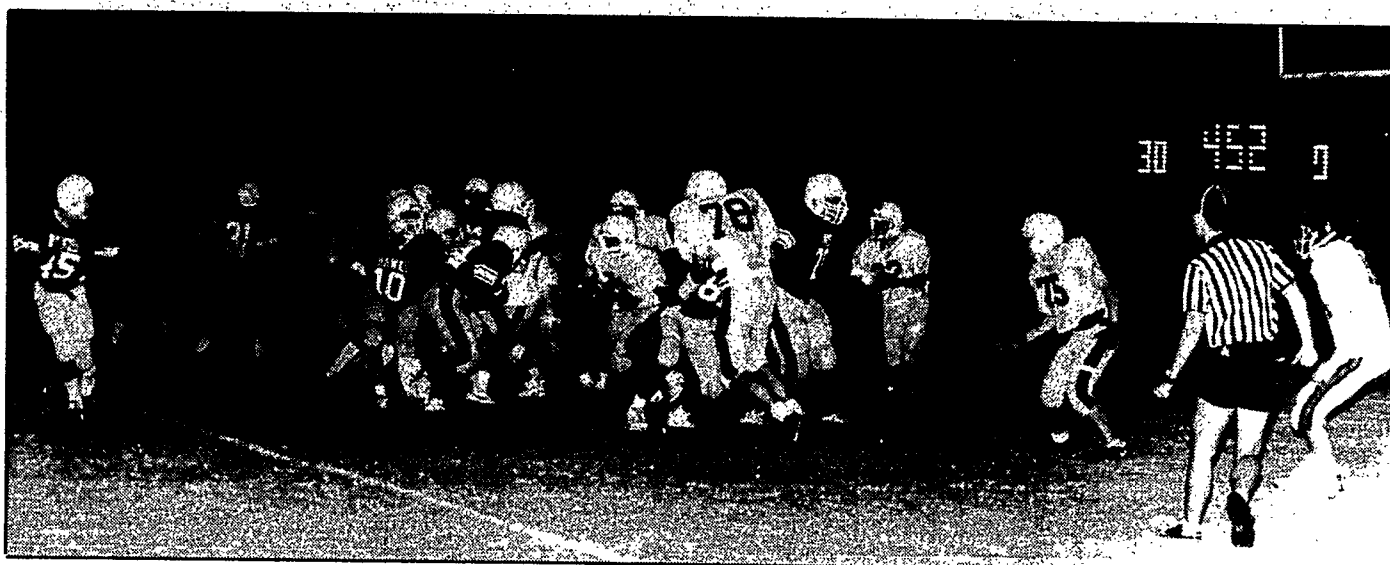

"They have the same quarterback and fullback as last year and they are tough. We will have to apply some real pressure on these two players. Defensively, they have the best secondary that I've seen all year. They're big and they come up on you quick," he said.

"Our offensive line will really have to come through for us. Mentally, we will have to be prepared," Favre added.

The Hawks need a big turnout for support. Fans are asked to come early for good parking and seating.

Kickoff is at 7:30 p.m.

Hancock Junior High Hawks in action

Rocks vie for runner-up slot

Special to the Echo
BY TOM ACKERMAN

You can feel the excitement building.

Friday night, it all comes to a head when the St. Stanislaus Rock-A-Chaws face off against the d'Iberville Warriors at SSC Stadium.

The winner of this game will claim the runner-up spot in district VIII 4-A and the right to advance to the post-season playoffs.

"We're excited, eager, and ready to go," Rock head football coach Ken Lyons said in anticipation of the game. But then he added, to downplay somewhat an over emphasis of this one particular game, "We're just trying to get over the hump—to have a winning season." The Rocks stand 5-2 now, overall, and 2-1 in district play.

If the Rock-A-Chaws pull this one off, it will be the first time since the present playoff system was inaugurated in 1981 that SSC will have attained a playoff berth in football.

In addition to that honor, the Rocks also have the opportunity to set numerous defensive records for the school's annals.

Looking at d'Iberville, it would appear from their record the Rocks have nothing to fear. Not so, Lyons adds quickly.

"In spite of their losing season (2-5), d'Iberville has won the games that count," he said. And those two wins were in district competition against St. Martin and Long Beach.

"They've got a good veer option quarterback, so we'll be expecting them to throw the ball a lot," Lyons said, looking ahead to what the Rocks will be facing tomorrow night.

"Mentally, we'll be ready for them," he continued, "but we've still got a few physical ailments. For one, we're hoping that Tate Thriffley will return." Thriffley missed last week's game at St. Martin due to an injured ankle.

The Rocks kept their playoff hopes alive last Friday defeating the Yellow Jackets 8-6 at St. Martin. "They were very physical," Lyons said of the Jackets.

"They've got one of the better running backs in the league (Demetrius Mosley)," he continued. "But we did a good job in slowing down their ball control offensively," he added.

"Our offense moved the ball sporadically," he noted, pointing out a weakness the Rocks will definitely be working to overcome.

"We had one good opening drive, but penalties and miscues stopped some scoring opportunities," Lyons said.

Both the Rock-A-Chaws and d'Iberville need the win tomorrow night for the 3-1 record that will determine second place.

Game time is 7:30 at the St. Stanislaus Stadium.

Property owners, stillhunters to meet Oct. 25

A meeting for property owners and stillhunters will be Thursday, Oct. 25 at 7 p.m. at the Harrison County Courthouse in Gulfport.

Both legal and legislative plans for the coming deer season and legislative session will be discussed. Several other topics which will be of interest to many property owners across the state will also be covered.

Speakers will include a representative of the Mississippi Stillhunters Association and John Stack of the Mississippi Property Rights Association.

the walk include Hancock Insurance, GE Plastics, Nell Frisbie Coldwell Banker, Hancock Bank, Hancock Medical Center, Kmart;

Last year's event raised $7,775 for March of Dimes. Hancock County Sheriff Ronald Peterson will be event chairman. For additional information, contact the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce, 467-9048.

Bay High Players of Week

The Bay High Athletic Club has named Players of the Week for outstanding achievement on offense and defense during Friday night's game against Stone County. Number 75 Jeff Hopgood, left, was chosen Defensive Player of the Week. The freshman defensive end is credited with three solo tackles and two assists on tackles. "The effort and desire he displayed during the game cannot be measured in statistics," said Coach Rocky Gaudin. Number 83 Will Moon was named Offensive Player of the Week. The senior tight end caught two passes for 80 yards. He scored Bay High's only touchdown and "did a good job of blocking, despite being outweighed by his opponent by about 40 pounds," said Gaudin. ## Bay oyster reef may open for tonging: BMR

It'll be tonging only this oyster season, Bureau of Marine Resources officials say, after biologists determined that not enough oysters are on the western Sound reefs to warrant opening them to dredging.

A public hearing is scheduled for Oct. 22 at 7 p.m. in the Marine Education Center in Biloxi to discuss possible oyster season opening dates, sack limits and proposed changes in the state oyster regulations.

John Cirino, BMR shellfish program manager, said heavy winter rains and localized flooding early this year and low development of young oysters in recent years has taken its toll on Mississippi's oyster population. Cirino projects a poor harvest this year with between 10,000 and 15,000 sacks expected.

A sack of oysters produces between five and eight pounds of oyster meat.

Cirino said that the proposed opening of oyster season will begin in mid-November, about a month later than normal. Cirino said he expects the oyster season to close early when most of the legal-size oysters are taken from the reefs.

An oyster must measure at least three inches from hinge to bill to be legally taken in Mississippi.

Cirino said most of the oysters harvested this season will come from Graveline Bayou in the eastern Sound.

"We intend to open the Bay St. Louis oyster reef to tonging this year, provided that the Food and Drug Administration has no strong objections," Cirino said. "We estimate there's between 5,000 and 8,000 sacks of oysters on that reef."

The reef is located in the Bay of St. Louis between the U.S. 90 and the CSX Railroad bridges. It has been closed for harvest since September 1984 because of sewage flowing into the bay from the large number of homes using poorly operating septic tanks in the Pass Christian Isles and Henderson Point areas.

BMR shellfish managers tried to get FDA approval last year to open the reef. But FDA officials refused, saying not enough tests were done to determine that the oysters on the reef posed no threat to public health.

"Most of the homes in the area are now tied, or scheduled to be tied, into sewerage-treatment lines," Cirino said. "We don't see any reason why it shouldn't be opened this year."

Last year, Graveline Bayou was opened for the first time in 14 years after extensive tests showed that houses and businesses in the Gautier area had stopped using septic tanks and hooked into sewerage-treatment lines.

If eaten by humans, oysters contaminated by sewage may cause such diseases as hepatitis and cholera.

Information on the opening and closing of oyster reefs may be obtained throughout the oyster season by calling the BMR's tape-recorded oyster hotline at 385-5902.

Eagles host Tigers for homecoming

Southern Mississippi's Golden Eagles hope to finish with a perfect home record this season when they host Memphis State Saturday in a 3 p.m. homecoming contest.

The Golden Eagles, 2-0 this season at home, defeated Delta State in the season opener 12-0 and Louisville 25-13.

USM returns home after a two-game road swing to East Carolina and Tulane and will play the final three weeks of the season on the road at Virginia Tech (Oct. 27), Southwestern Louisiana (Nov. 3) and Auburn (Nov. 10).

This will be the fourth time the Eagles have hosted the Tigers for homecoming with USM winning all three previous meetings. USM last hosted the Tigers for homecoming in 1988.

In that game, Memphis State erased a 26-13 Golden Eagle fourth quarter lead with two late touchdowns to take a 27-26 advantage.

The Golden Eagles, though, erased that lead on a 45-yard pass from Brett Favre to Eugene Rowell with 39 seconds left for a 34-27 come-from-behind victory.

Place kicker Chris Seroka connected on four of five field goals and accounted for 14 Eagle points in the game.

In last year's contest in Memphis, the Golden Eagles jumped out to a 24-0 lead and Brett Favre threw for 345 yards and two touchdown passes to lead USM past the Tigers 31-7. The win extended USM's series lead to 25-14-1.

Saturday's game will mark USM's 54th homecoming since the 1932 season. The Golden Eagles are 40-13 in homecoming contests and will be trying to avenge a 24-21 loss to the Ragin' Cajuns of Southwestern Louisiana last season.

The Golden Eagles have a few gaps in their homecoming history. Due to World War II, USM did not field teams from 1942-1945.

In the early 70's, Roberts Stadium underwent renovation and expansion. Because of the construction, USM played all of its games on the road.

In 1974 was celebrated during basketball season.

The following year, in what is believed to be the only USM homecoming game played off campus, the Eagles defeated Cal-State Fullerton 70-0 in Biloxi.

Seats are still available for the game Saturday and can be purchased at the Green Coliseum Ticket Office or by calling 266-5418 or 1-800-844-TICK in Mississippi only.

Pirates host Long Beach

Special to the Echo
BY PATRICK MCKEE
The Pass Christian Pirates will host the Long Beach Bearcats Friday night. The Pirate homegame will begin at 7:30 p.m.

"We are going to have to stick with the basics," said Pirate head coach Joseph Brown. "It's the only way to go."

Brown praised the Bearcats ability to play a good game. "They stack up very well. Their team has shown a lot of improvement, and they are going to be tough."

Brown added that the Bearcats have a good offensive game. "Long Beach has a good quarterback. He throws the ball extremely well. They also have a good wide receiver and a couple of good runningbacks."

"If we are going to win, we are going to have to keep our heads on straight," said Brown. The coach went on to explain that many of the problems that the Pirates have had this year were due to mental errors, rather than physical ones.

Although the Pirates have been able to avoid serious injuries this season, the team does have some players who are banged up. Linebacker Jimmy Crawford is suffering from a bruised shoulder. Runningback Jerome Malley and wide receiver Winfred Rials have bruised thighs, and linebacker Ray Alexander is suffering a groin injury.

Kicker Eldon Daniels who had been suffering from a fractured foot played last Friday night, and Brown hopes to see him play against Long Beach. He also is optimistic that all of his players will be physically ready by Friday night.

The coach also took time to compliment both of his assistant coaches, Glenn Williams and Stan Massengale. "They have done a fine job the whole year," he said.

Brown feels that their effort this year has contributed to the team's success. The Pirates have had 23 quarters this year where no team has scored against them. "I am real pleased about that," he replied.

What Brown is not happy about is the high number of penalties called against his team. When asked what can be done about it, he said, "I hate to admit it, but there is not a whole lot I can do."

The Player of the Week award for the offense went to wide receiver Ryan "Boo" Jenkins. For special teams the award was given to Renaldo Devallade and John Wilkerson.

The whole defense was honored by their outstanding effort last week against Pearl River Central. They are Burnell Dedeaux, Jimmy Crawford, Tony Jacobs, Earl Washington, Charles Lizana, Ryan "Boo"

Jenkins, Brian Plunkett, Thad Williams, Ray Alexander, Steve Biggs, Stephen Roles, and Harrison Glover.

Brown mentioned that this week the players are taking exams. Although the team has not lost any players due to academics, he does hope they will study.

On the practice field this week Brown hopes to get the team ready for the Bearcats. He plans to practice equally on the offense and defense. "Hopefully we will be ready," he said.

MSU, Tulane vie Saturday

Mississippi State's football Bulldogs step outside the Southeastern Conference Saturday night to close out a three-game road stretch in New Orleans against the Tulane Green Wave.

Coach Rocky Felker's charges rallied from a 17-3 third quarter deficit but came up just short in a 17-15 Southeastern Conference loss at Kentucky last week to drop to 2-3 for the season.

The Green Wave also endured a heartbreaker, building a 14-0 lead over Southern Mississippi before the Golden Eagles rallied for a 20-14 win in the Louisiana Superdome.

Tulane enters Saturday's game with a 2-5 mark. The Bulldogs return to Scott Field for the first time since September 22 for a Homecoming matchup with Auburn Oct. 27, while Tulane plays host to Cincinnati.

Kickoff is 7 p.m. at the Louisiana Superdome.

Tigers prepare to meet St. Martin Yellowjackets

BY TRACI BONNEY

Despite a searing loss to the Stone County Tomcats last week, Bay High Tiger head coach Rocky Gaudin is approaching tomorrow's away game against the St. Martin Yellowjackets with optimism.

"We can win this game, but we'll have to go over there and play very well, better than we played last week for sure, and not make mistakes," he said.

Gaudin assessed the strengths of the 2-5 Yellowjackets as "the same ones we encounter every week: more speed, experience and depth and a coaching staff that's been stable for the last three or four years."

On the other hand, he said, St. Martin's kicking game is not very strong.

In addition, the 'Jackets and the Tigers share a weak point that has hamstrung both teams this season. They sparkle in moving the ball down the field, but sputter in sight of the goal line.

The Tigers came out better against the Tomcats than the score would indicate, Gaudin said, explaining that the team suffered no major injuries.

The only player loss this week is due to a discipline problem, he added.

In preparation for tomorrow's face-off, the Tigers are working on improving their offense, particularly where short yardage is concerned, and increasing the flexibility of their defense.

In reflecting on the season thus far (the team has two more games, both home and rival games, after this one), Gaudin said he sees two particular areas of improvement: better execution of the Tigers' offense, which he admits is a complicated one, and better player attitude.

"The kids want to work now," he said. "They get out on the field and they clap, they're vocal. They have fun out there."

Another positive aspect of the season he has noticed has been the backing of the spectators and school board members.

"I really do appreciate those people being supportive of us," he stated.

Gaudin said his goal now for the team is to have a strong, positive finish for the season and to begin working toward the next season.

"I'm very pleased with everything except our record, and I take full responsibility for that. We're going to improve next year."

Head up a creek to catch Autumn bass

Autumn is the one time of year when bass fishermen don't mind being caught up a creek without a paddle.

That's because creeks are prime places to catch large-mouths this time of year. The fish are moving shallow, they're feeding heavily, and they actively chase fast-moving lures.

"Fall is really my favorite time of year to fish," says Johnson Outboards Pro Staff angler David Wharton, a well-known tournament pro and former guide on Sam Rayburn Lake in Texas.

"Bass are both easier to find and to catch because they're in predictable locations and usually feeding pretty aggressively," Wharton suggests anglers begin looking for autumn bass in major lake tributaries, and concentrate first around shallow vegetation along the edges of channels.

"Begin your fishing in the mouth of a big creek," advises the Johnson pro, "and gradually fish your way back. Bass will be located in a distinct area of the creek, depending upon how far they've moved into it. Once you locate this area, you'll usually find bass in the same area in other creeks, too."

Wharton looks first for vegetation like milfoil, lily pads, moss, or weeds that may grow along the shoreline and extend out into deeper water. In the absence of vegetation, Wharton concentrates on stumps, fallen logs or bushes.

"The availability of cover is extremely important in locating bass in these creeks," Wharton points out, "because the fish are feeding heavily on baitfish. The bait will invariably be in or near the cover."

Spinnerbaits are the lure of choice for fishing autumn creeks, says Wharton, because they can be worked shallow or deep, fast or slow, and are basically weedless around thick, heavy cover.

Plants need your help in coping with stress

By Dr. Milo Burnham
Horticulturist
Mississippi Cooperative
Extension Service

It finally happened—the first truly cool weather since spring, and what a coincidence. It occurred within a day or two of the autumnal equinox. You could actually see your breath in the early hours of the day. How refreshing! How wonderful! How absolutely beautiful! Fall is actually here! There will be more hot days no doubt, but we've been freed from the iron grip of summer, the endless days of sweltering heat.

It's time to take inventory of the damage that the heat and drought inflicted on the plant materials in our yards. Dead and damaged plants are evident in some parts of the state. Dogwood trees in some yards took a beating. Chances are the trees that died had been transplanted to their present location, happen with other types of plants as well.

Containerized shrubs, those in raised beds and plants with limited rooting area are also showing considerable damage from the summer. This may be a combination of the winter's freeze damage and the summer's heat and dryness.

A number of evergreen hollies have turned brown, and they're not going to turn green again. They're dead, like it or not, in most cases as a result of insufficient water.

Heller Japanese holly (Ilex crenata "Helleri") is one of the hollies that is most sensitive to water stress. But, dead dwarf yaupon holly (Ilex vomitoria nana) and native yaupon holly (Ilex vomitoria) in planters and raised beds with limited soil area for roots have also been observed over the past several weeks.

in Mississippi Gardens

which more than likely was not a site where dogwood would grow and thrive. Stressed by time spent in unnatural settings and non-preferred soil types, the trees finally called it quits.

Some homeowners claim to have religiously watered the dogwood trees during period of no rainfall. You'll find it difficult to accept that you may have contributed to the tree's demise when you thought you were helping.

Frequent watering of dogwoods in heavy clay and poorly drained soils can lead to root death, root rots and ultimately death. This can Cool weather is certainly going to ease the stress on landscape plants, but they also need moisture. Typically the next four to six weeks can be very dry, and plants will continue to weaken and die without supplemental irrigation.

This year's total damage may not be immediately evident, but will show itself in time as decreased vigor and perhaps eventual death. Weakened plants are more susceptible to diseases than robust plants with good vigor, and they are also more susceptible to winter injury.

Don't forget, much of the damage to lawn grasses this past winter was credited to the grasses being in poor condition when subjected to the sudden freeze. This weakened condition was credited to the dry fall weather that reduced growth and the build-up of carbohydrates.

Once you've surveyed the landscape, assessed the damage and kicked yourself for neglecting trees and shrubs, it's time to do something about the situation to prevent it from getting worse. This is not the time to start fertilizing trees and shrubs in an effort to "bring them around." This is also not the time to get involved in pruning trees and shrubs.

Both fertilization and pruning combined with moist soil may stimulate dormant buds to begin growing and producing new leaves and stems that will surely be killed by the first hard freeze.

Since fall is an ideal time for planting shrubbery, use the next several weeks to replace dead plants in the landscape. Do this only if you will follow through on a watering program to help the new plants become established and protect existing plants from further damage.

Use container grown plants. It's still too early for bare-root trees and shrubs. While the above-ground portions of plants have ceased growing and are going dormant in preparation for winter, the roots continue to grow as long as the soil is warm and moist.

Box 2237, Fort Myers, Fla. 33902; Nichols Garden Nursery, 1190 North Pacific Highway, Albany, Ore. 97321 and Porter & Son, Seedsman, 1510 E. Washington Street, P.O. ## It's a yellow ribbon day

Pearlington elementary
students honor servicemen

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

The U.S.S. Wisconsin is floating around somewhere in the Persian Gulf these days, but deep in Hancock County at the Charles B. Murphy Elementary School in Pearlington, students, faculty and staff joined together on Friday, October 12 to honor our servicemen with a day of celebration.

Everyone wore yellow, from frilly party dresses to faded T-shirts.

One young fellow stopped to lift his pant legs and show off a bright pair of yellow socks, demonstrating his participation.

Yellow ribbons were strung on shirts, in hair, about trees and around hearts.

Singing "It's A Grand Old Flag," the children marched carrying American flags, and small voices joined to make a larger noise—of pride.

"The children hear all this talk on television and in their homes about boys going to war and it is very confusing," said Williams.

"Each grade was given a unit to study about the area. They learned of the climate, the location, the people. Then my secretary, Andrea Gaudin, suggested the children send a box to some of the boys," added Williams.

Gaudin's daughter is friends with the wife of one of the U.S.S. Wisconsin crew members. The box will be sent to one of four young men with whom Gaudin's daughter has been in contact, in hopes the children's contributions will be shared by all.

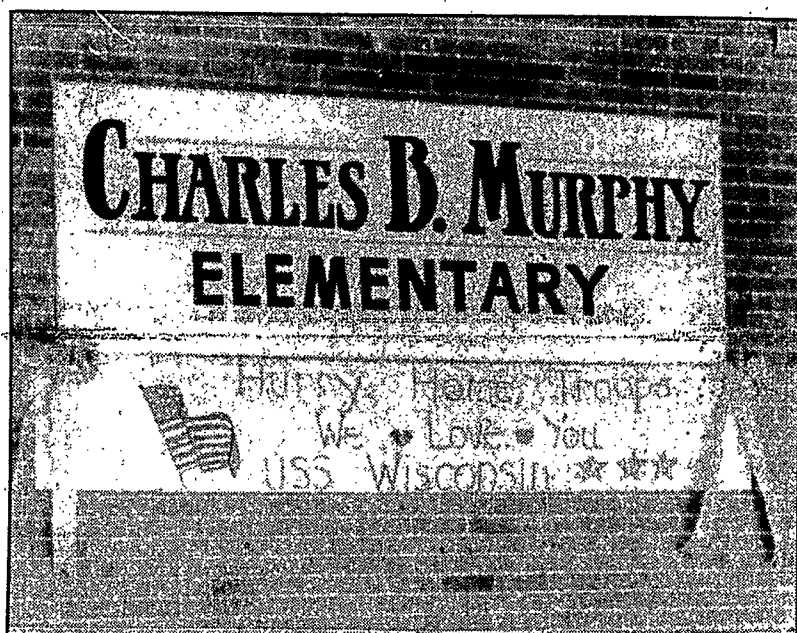

"This has brought a cohesiveness among the students and staff members," remarked one of the teachers of the day's events. "There is a spirit of cooperation along with the patriotism."

Williams said once the project

Pack'em up

Students contribute cookies, magazines, hard candies, cross word puzzles, paperback novels, gum and letters. Second grader Danyelle Lee commented on the box packing, saying, "So they can have their own kind of food." (Echo staff photo by Jacqui Cochran)

Fourth grader Michael Joe Edwards expressed his understanding of the day saying, "It's to say thanks, and we hope they come home soon."

Principal Clementine Williams spoke of the need for the children to have some understanding of the situation in the Middle East.

began, it became not only a school involvement, but a community effort. "Parents came out and helped, too."

In the main entrance to the school is a large bulletin board with a map of the Middle Eastern area and its proximity to Pearlington.

The board is encircled by strips of paper with the names of every person at the school, each attached by a tack, a yellow ribbon and a little bit of love.

Marching to the beat

Around and around, parade the students, voices raised high into the crisp autumn air. (Echo staff photo by Jacqui Cochran)

Rally around

An old oak tree is decorated with a yellow ribbon, symbolizing hope, while the heroes of tomorrow cheer the heroes of today. (Echo staff photo by Jacqui Cochran)

Can Arthritis Really Be Cured?

It's a simple question, one we're asked all the time. The answer is yes. And no.

The first thing we need to find out is what kind of arthritis you have. As in all fields of medicine, making the right diagnosis comes before prescribing the right treatment.

As rheumatologists, we're M.D.s trained and Board Certified in Internal Medicine and, in Dr. Mariela Sedrishi's case, in Pediatrics as well. After completing the exhaustive training required to become a "primary care physician" (e.g. Internist, Pediatrician, Family Practitioner), a physician must dedicate at least two more years studying arthritis and immune diseases to become a rheumatologist.

That time is spent recognizing and treating the dozens of different types of arthritis. And by narrowing the field of study to one area, it becomes possible to keep up with all the research into new treatments of these crippling diseases.

Working with your primary care doctor, we may be able to get your arthritis under control and prevent it from doing further damage. And if yours is one of the curable forms of arthritis, such as Lyme Disease, then of course the news is even better.

EDUCATION NOTES

Duke University recognizes Bay High seventh graders

Jeremy Turcotte, Nicole Ray, Kristina Estapa, April Darensbourg, Cecile Bilbo, Katie Pursley, Jason Mauffray, Jay Knight and Amanda Wilcox are seventh grade Bay High applicants for the 1990-91 Talent Search for mathematically and verbally advanced students.

The Talent Search program, sponsored by Duke University's Talented Identification Program (TIP) identifies highly capable students from a 16-state region in the South, Southwest and Midwest.

To be eligible, students must have scored at the 97th percent-tile or better on an in-school achievement or ability measure.

In December, January or February the applicants will take the Scholastic Aptitude Test or the ACT Assessment normally taken only by college-bound juniors and seniors.

Many students score as well as or better than the average college-bound senior on some of the measures. All participants will receive certificates of merit, and those qualifying will become eligible for statewide recognition ceremonies or a variety of educational programs.

TIP established in 1980, has provided thousands of students with information about their abilities and educational options.

The purposes of the program are to help academically bright students develop their special abilities, to assist schools in working with their brightest students and to understand the nature of exceptional mathematical and verbal ability.

Jeremy Turcotte, Nicole Ray, Kristina Estapa, April Darensbourg, Cecile Bilbo, Katie Pursley, Jason Mauffray, Jay Knight and Amanda Wilcox

age, or from graduating seniors who have achieved this average through the end of the fall 90 semester.

Your Hometown Newspaper

In anticipation of the beginning of our 100th year of service to the citizens of Hancock County, we are going to go back in time to bring you the lowest subscription rates since the 1970s. As with everything else, the days of the two-cent newspaper and .15-cent a gallon gasoline have gone with the winds of progress. A .15-cent newspaper is almost unheard of today, but you have the opportunity to get one (local delivery areas - elsewhere slightly higher) for up to two years if you act quickly.

The Sea Coast Echo has grown and prospered during these past 99 years only because you, the public chose to support us with advertising, news, and a never ending spirit of cooperation that is typical of every Hancock Countian, native or transplanted. For this we sincerely thank you and earnestly solicit your continued support during our next century of service.

Effective October 18, 1990 through November 19, 1990, The Echo will reduce its subscription prices across the board for new subscribers only. Rates to be in effect during this period only are shown in the box below. All new subscriptions are limited to a maximum of two (2) years at reduced rates. Rate reductions also apply to new gift subscriptions.
